Surdas was a 15th-century blind devotional poet and singer, born between 1478 and 1483 in Faridabad, Haryana. He wrote sixteen books with more than one lakh dohas. His birthday is celebrated every year on April 28th. Once Surdas fell in a well, Krishna rescued him and was running away. He sang the following and challenged the might of Krishna...

हाथ छुड़ाये जात हो, निर्बल जानि के मोय। हृदय से जब जाओ, तो सबल जाऊँगा तोय।।

Varadaraja was a 17th-century Sanskrit Grammarian who had autistic features and could not make friends. Because of his odd behaviours, he was bullied by his classmates and was unhappy with teachers too. Once while running away from gurukul he was inspired by the rope marks made on the stone border of a well. He returned back to the gurukul. Later in life, reduced the number of grammar rules to 723 out of the full technical grammar rules 3,959 of Panini.

Nalanda: Glory in Flames

Bakhtiyar Khilji, a Turkey invader in his 30s was the nawab in parts Bengal & Bihar during 12th century. Probably he had Multiple Sclerosis and was cured by Acharya Rahul Sri Badra of Nalanda. Without Khiljis knowledge Acharya Rahul Sri Badra had smeared medicine on the pages of the Holy Quran which healed him. Khiljis felt cheated and decided to burn out Nalanda with nearly nine million manuscripts in its library. It kept burning for three months. Some manuscript are available in Japan and China.

THE TWIN POETS

Irattaiyalar (meaning The Twin Poets) or Irattaiyar were brothers born blind & lame in Chola Nadu during 14th century. The poet who was blind carrying brother who was lame on the shoulders, complementing each other in poetry as in life, one poet completing extempore what the other began. The strings of Yash added melody to their hymn. There were hundreds of tanippatalas (meaning solitary stanzas) composed by the Twins in this way to meet about emergencies. They had composed Ekambaranatharula celebrating the famous Saiva shrine in Kanchi.

ARROGANCE OF BEAUTY WHICH ENDED KRISHNA & YADAVAS

Samba, a son of Lord Krishna, had the enchanting looks and aura of Krishna. He had shown disrespect to sage Dhurvasa and created misunderstandings for Narada. He was cursed as he abused his good looks and got inflicted by Leprosy. He got cured of Leprosy by his 12 years long penance at the present day Konark (Sun Temple) in Odisha.

Khana was a Bengali poet and legendary astrologer during 12th century. Through the centuries, Khana's advice has acquired the character of an oracle in rural Bengal, Bangladesh, Bihar. Ancient versions in Assamese and Oriya also exist. She was Varahamihira's wife, and a outspoken lady. As a penance she cut her tongue and hence had lost her speech clarity. Khana in Odiya & Bengali means the person who has un clear speech. Her real name was Leelavati.

DIVYANGJAN WHO SHAPED INDIA

21 Disabilities in Bharathanatyam

The Rishi who was blind, Dhirghatamas is author of Suktas (hymns) 140 to 164 in the first mandala of the Rig Veda. He was the reputed purohit or chief priest of King Bharata. On the advice of Dirghatamas the son of Bhrhaspati named Vidathata who had all the sixteen properties of a king was made the next king. As a celebration of King Bharat's wisdom the country was named Bharat.

Surdas was a 15th-century blind devotional poet and singer, born between 1478 and 1483 in Faridabad, Haryana. He wrote sixteen books with more than one lakh dohas. His birthday is celebrated every year on April 28th. Once Surdas fell in a well, Krishna rescued him and was running away. He sung the following and challenged the might of Krishna...
 हाथ छुड़ाये जात हो, निर्बल जानि के मोय। हृदय से जब जाओ, तो सबल जाऊँगा तोय।।

Varadaraja was a 17th-century Sanskrit Grammarian who had autistic features and could not make friends. Because of his odd behaviours, he was bullied by his classmates and was unhappy with teachers too. Once while running away from gurukul he was inspired by the rope marks made on the stone border of a well. He returned back to the gurukul. Later in life, reduced the number of grammar rules to 723 out of the full technical grammar rules 3,959 of Panini.

Nalanda: Glory in Flames

Bakhtiyar Khilji, a Turkey invader in his 30s was the nawab in parts Bengal & Bihar during 12th century. Probably he had Multiple Sclerosis and was cured by Acharya Rahul Sri Badra of Nalanda. Without Khiljis knowledge Acharya Rahul Sri Badra had smeared medicine on the pages of the Holy Quran which healed him. Khiljis felt cheated and decided to burn out Nalanda with nearly nine million manuscripts in its library. It kept burning for three months. Some manuscript are available in Japan and China.

THE TWIN POETS

Irattaiyalar (meaning The Twin Poets) or Irattaiyar were brothers born blind & lame in Chola Nadu during 14th century. The poet who was blind carrying brother who was lame on the shoulders, complementing each other in poetry as in life, one poet completing extempore what the other began. The strings of Yash added melody to their hymn. There were hundreds of tanippatalas (meaning solitary stanzas) composed by the Twins in this way to meet about emergencies. They had composed Ekambaranatharula celebrating the famous Saiva shrine in Kanchi.

ARROGANCE OF BEAUTY WHICH ENDED KRISHNA & YADAVAS

Samba, a son of Lord Krishna, had the enchanting looks and aura of Krishna. He had shown disrespect to sage Dhurvasa and created misunderstandings for Narada. He was cursed as he abused his good looks and got inflicted by Leprosy. He got cured of Leprosy by his 12 years long penance at the present day Konark (Sun Temple) in Odisha.

Khana was a Bengali poet and legendary astrologer during 12th century. Through the centuries, Khana's advice has acquired the character of an oracle in rural Bengal, Bangladesh, Bihar. Ancient versions in Assamese and Oriya also exist. She was Varahamihira's wife, and a outspoken lady. As a penance she cut her tongue and hence had lost her speech clarity. Khana in Odiya & Bengali means the person who has un clear speech. Her real name was Leelavati.
